Harry's Holidays

Read the text.

Last year Harry was on holiday in Cornwall. He visited his uncle, Ben, in a small fishing village.

One evening Harry and his uncle sat in the garden and Ben told stories about the time when he was captain of a ship.

"It was a hard life for the men on the ships. The coast¹ was wild and the rocks² were very dangerous. Ships often hit the rocks and pirates stole everything from the ships. There are also a lot of caves³ here. Sometimes you can find what the pirates left there," said Ben.

"Pirates? You mean real pirates lived here and left their treasure⁴ boxes in these caves? Do you think I can find some treasure?" asked Harry.

"Oh yes, it can happen. Last year a tourist found an old golden ring and gave it to our museum," answered Ben.
